

DELIVERING VALUE TODAY AND TOMORROW

An international conference organised by the Institute of Value Management on behalf SAVE International and of the European Governing Board of the Value Management Training and Certification System (EGB)

14 & 15 September 2006, The Grand Hotel, Brighton, UK

CALL FOR PAPERS

The first international conference on Value Management to be held in the UK for over 10 years will take place later this year at the Grand Hotel, Brighton. The conference themes will be:

- Best global practice today
- The challenges of tomorrow
- Emerging techniques and developments
- New applications of VM and related methodologies.

The organisers welcome papers in English from all sectors – manufacturing, service delivery, and construction – and from all viewpoints – academia, VM practitioners and specialists, clients, government and local government. Papers which relate to cross-fertilisation of ideas and practice between sectors and methodologies will be of particular interest.

Authors are invited to submit expressions of interest as soon as possible to Dick Beardsall PVM TVM, Co-ordinator of the Technical Committee, by emailing svltd@btinternet.com. Full details of the requirements for abstracts and papers will be given to those expressing an interest.

The programme for formal submissions will be:

| | |
|-------------------------|-----------------|
| Submission of abstracts | by 7 April 2006 |
| Submission of papers | by 14 July 2006 |

It is expected that this conference will attract leading figures in Value Management from around the world and it will, therefore, provide an unrivalled opportunity to present your ideas and achievements and gain feedback from a wide spectrum of experience.
